*Indicates courses created as part of performance curriculum development

Hollins University, Hollins Playwrights Lab

Viewpoints and Composition THEA 522

Taken by playwrights, directors, and performers to build ensemble and open new avenues of collaboration on found, created, devised, and scripted text. Will include techniques for collaboration, building ensemble, group dynamics, psychophysical acting and improvisation, crafting theatre pieces based on found, devised and scripted text.

Ensembles in Collaboration THEA 565

This course is designed to guide performance students through the process of collaboration from the initial table read with the playwright through final performance. The course affords performers an opportunity to debrief their experiences with an experienced theatre professional with expertise in best practices.

Advanced Tutorial THEA 575

Guided instruction in creating a full-length play, which is polished, complete, ready for production, and suitable for submission. This course functions as an advanced version of Narrative Theory and Structure THEA 571 with an emphasis on targeted exercises and exploratory writing rather than workshopping the actual text.
